

AGENDA

(updated on 20 November 2018)

Introduction

The CPMR is organising a series of events in Tirana, on 20-21 November 2018, as part of the EU-funded AI-NURECC Initiative, which contributes to providing added value for the implementation of the EUSAIR macro-regional strategy.

More precisely, these events fall under the AI-NURECC Skills Development and Training Action and the AI-NURECC Task Force on Tourism and Cultural Heritage and aim to:

- promote technical debate on the added value of EU policies and the macro-regional approach for AI countries (especially for non-EU members) focusing on multi-level governance matters;
- increase skills and knowledge of young people, students and civil servants on territorial development project design to emphasise the untapped opportunities available through EU, national, and regional funding programmes by capitalising on existing project ideas, exchange of best practices and achieving critical mass of information (e.g. on tourism business and cultural heritage related topics);
- promote multi-actor networking activities and innovative synergies among universities, regional and local authorities and representatives of the business sector;
- explore collaboration opportunities with existing EUSAIR technical bodies (TSGs and All Round Tables);

The 2018 European Year of Cultural Heritage under way, makes this action even more relevant as the partners involved in the EYCH's activities will be invited to participate in the related AI-NURECC events, such as the Info-kiosk in Tirana, and exchange with the non-EU States' delegations.

In this context, aiming to bring together young people, politicians and officers from Regional and Local Authorities and representatives of Chambers of Commerce, Universities, VET, NGOs, Managing Authorities of ETC programmes, Interreg Project Managers, the AI-NURECC Initiative will specifically organise:

A FORUM on EU Policies and EU Territorial Cooperation Opportunities focused on Technology, Innovation and Youth in the Adriatic-Ionian area. The Forum will take place on the first day and will:

- set the wider policy and strategic context at European level in technology, innovation and youth policies including proposals for the 2021-2027 programming period;
- consider how macro-regional strategies support and promote technology, innovation, youth inclusion and conversion of brain drain into brain and wisdom gain, including the experiences to date in another EU Macro-regional Strategy;
- discuss the role that Regional and Local Authorities play in driving forward a sustainable approach to education and training systems.

A TRAINING WORKSHOP taking place in the afternoon of the first day. The training workshop will focus on the practicalities of preparing and implementing successful cooperation projects in the EUSAIR. It will include examples of best practice, tips on what to avoid doing, and will also highlight the forthcoming opportunities under the Interreg ADRIION and other cooperation programmes.

AN INFO-KIOSK taking place on the second day, in the morning. Its aim is to support dialogue in the field of cultural heritage and tourism, by offering visibility to the non-EU Members and promoting the diversity and the great potential of the Adriatic-Ionian Region.
